CHAPTER & VERSE 90mins, 2005
 Directed by Alex Monteith

Chapter & Verse is an experimental documentary that traces the image legacy of Northern Ireland's recent troubles via its contemporary landscapes. It took four years to shoot and Chapter and Verse traverses a vast array of Northern Irish locations defined by the troubles. The film focuses on the western border village of Castlederg, Co. Tyrone- one of the most bombed small towns in Northern Ireland. The camera roves with fierce curiosity amongst the Orange Order Parades, the raging 11th Night Bonfires of Belfast, the wall paintings of Londonderry, empty border-lands, murder-sites, cemeteries, home interiors, town and city streets whilst exploring how the troubles are both revealed and concealed by the Northern Irish landscape. Interviews with a mix of Northern Irish politicians, religious figures and victims of the troubles, including Rev. Ian Paisley and Bishop Emeritus of 'Derry Edward Daly, combine in a cinematic study of the complex effects of Northern Ireland's conflict history suspended in language.
